check in for the road trip

leave a little room for spontaneity today. grab coffee, load up snacks, swimsuits, towels, sunscreen, and hit the road.

first stop: weeki wachee springs.

choose your own version of fun: kayak the spring run, float in the clear water, or catch the mermaid show.

after that, keep heading north toward rainbow springs.

settle into camp, take a swim if you still have energy, and let the day slow down.

little adventure idea:

take your first polaroid somewhere near the water.

sunset:

make dinner, sit outside, and enjoy your first night in springs country.

day two

morning - slow start at rainbow springs

make coffee outside. walk the gardens. ease into the day.

then spend the morning enjoying the spring:

swim in the headsprings - walk the waterfall trail - relax in the sun

for a different kind of adventure, head to devil's den in the afternoon.

bring a towel, water shoes, and anything you want for a cool cave swim.

challenge:

each person picks their favorite shade of blue they saw today.

polaroid idea:

something that feels
magical or completely
unlike normal life.

- play a round of cards

morning three

one last slow morning

wake up easy. make coffee. pack up slowly.

if you want one more dip before heading back, take a final swim at rainbow springs.

before you leave, think about what you want to take home from the trip - not just your gear, but the feeling.

final challenge:

pick one moment you want to remember forever.

then pack up camp and start the drive home.

unofficial rules of itinerary:

you are completely allowed to:

linger a little longer
jump in the water twice pull over for a pretty view sit quietly for a minute
skip the rush
laugh a lot
get your hair wet wander without overthinking it

the point is not to race through the springs.

the point is to feel
refreshed, present,
and a little more free.

@floridavanlife.co

stay wild. live free.
